

2016 SF BAY AMERICAN CETACEAN SOCIETY PRESENTATIONS Of Orcas and Men – What Killer Whales Can Teach Us

Tue
January 26
7pm-9pm

Accompanied by photos and sounds, David Neiwert talks about the often-fraught relationship between humans and killer whales, what we've learned about these creatures in the last fifty years, and why we now know they deserve not just our awe but our deep respect. In the end, he makes the case for ending their captivity, and for saving our wild populations.

David Neiwert is an investigative journalist based in Seattle and the author of several books, including And Hell Followed With Her: Crossing the Dark Side of the American Border, which won the International Latino Book Award for nonfiction. He is also a contributing writer for the Southern Poverty Law Center.
