Subject: Phonecon with Whit Manley, RemyThomas re: Redwood City salt ponds
Date: Monday, October 26, 2009 1:36:59 PM

I just got off the phone with Whit Manley (916-443-2745) of Remy Thomas concerning the Redwood City salt ponds. According to Mr. Manley, his firm has been hired by the City of Redwood City to advise the city on the DMB Saltworks project. Redwood City hasn't decided to accept the application as complete. R-T and other consultants are working with the city to shape the environmental review process. If the city does go forward, the environmental analysis needs to be robust enough to meet the needs of other agencies as well.

He asked for contacts at the Corps. I gave him the following names:

Project Manager: Katerina Galacatos
South Branch Chief: Cameron Johnson
Regulatory Division Chief: Jane Hicks
District Counsel: Merry Goodenough

I told him we have no application on file for the project. I told him yes, we have had preliminary meetings with DMB.

According to Mr. Manley, the city hasn't made any determination whether or not to process the application. It would be useful for him to get any perspectives from the Corps to pass along to the city.

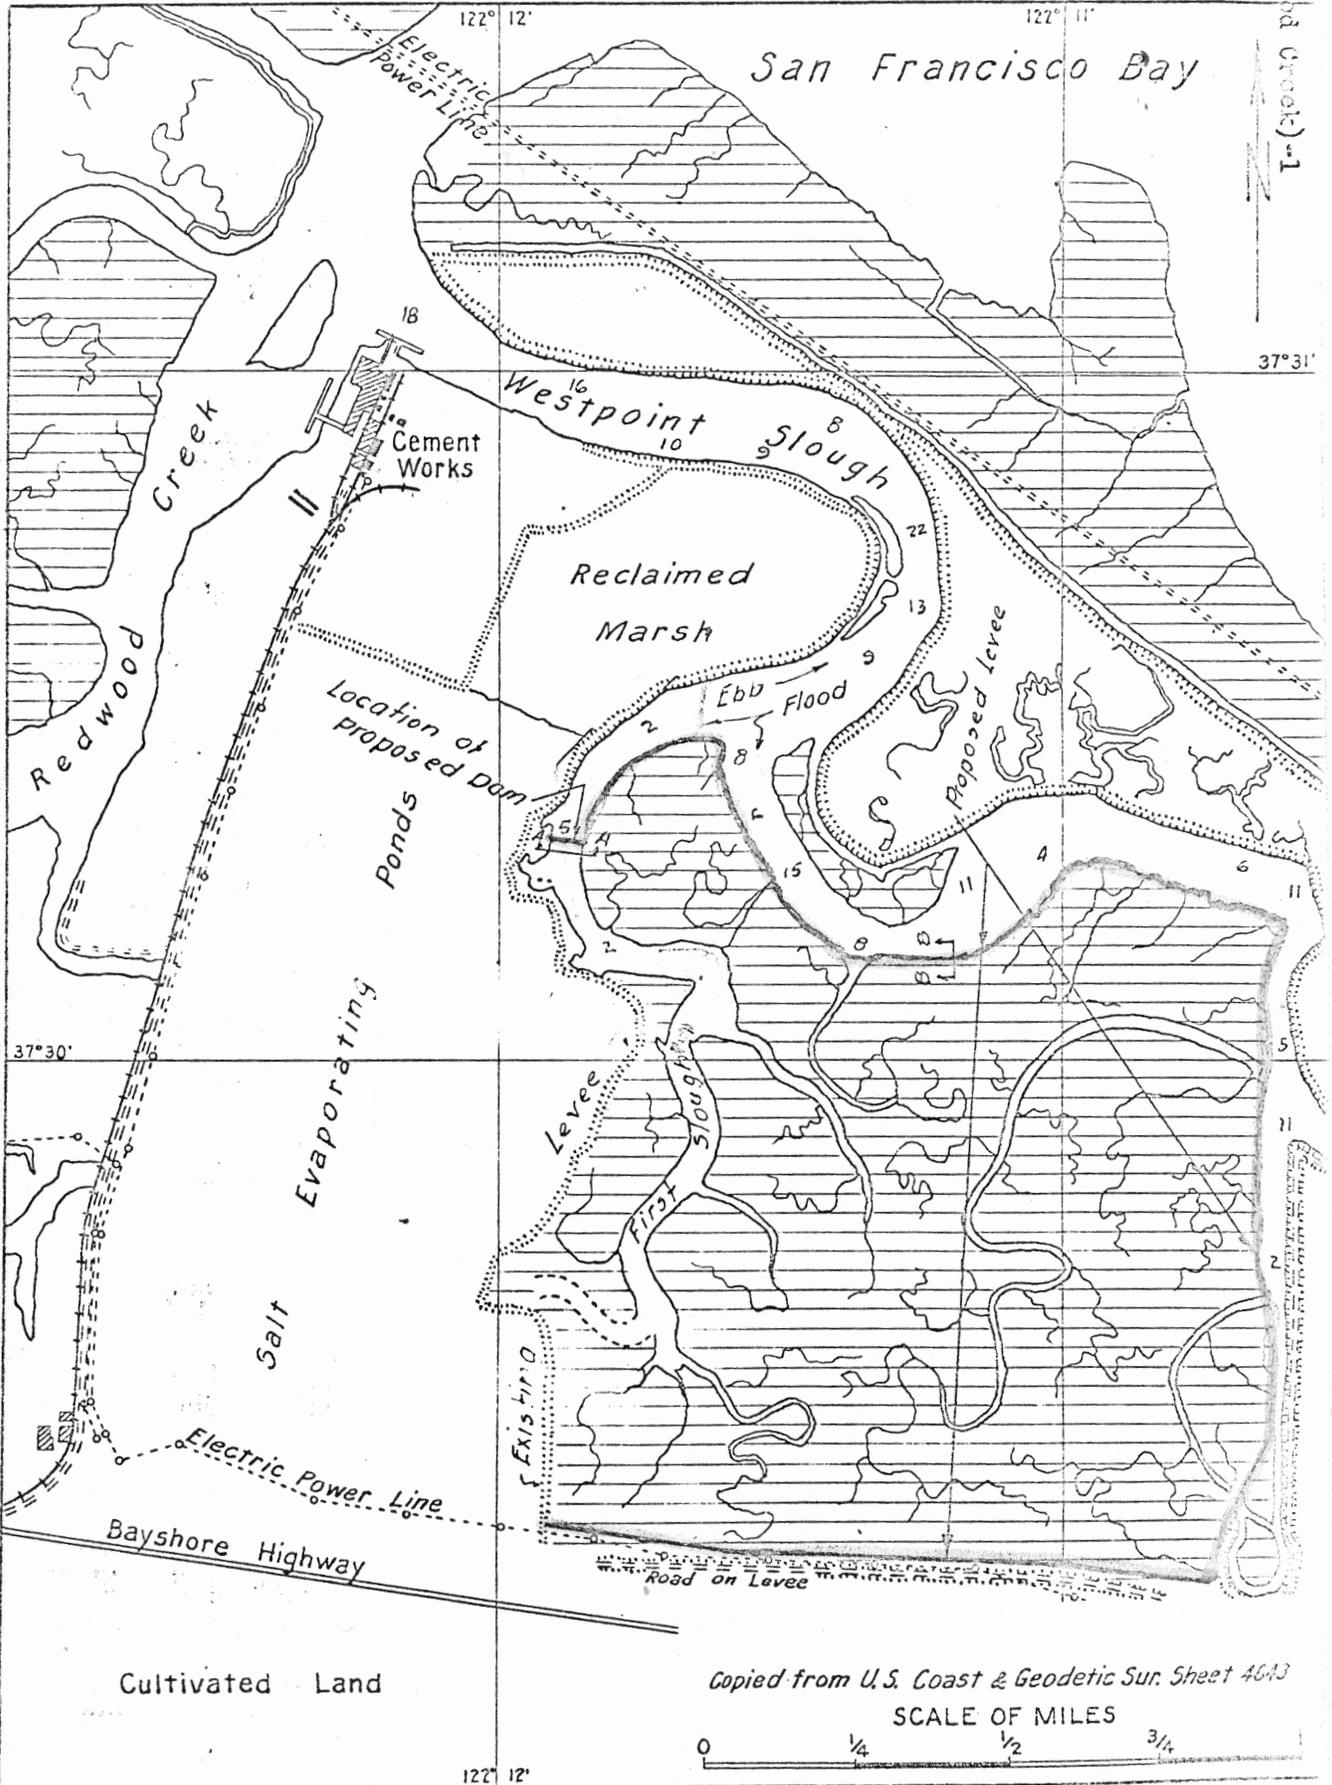

According to Mr. Manley, he works with land use entitlement process/CEQA/NEPA. His hope is if the EIR/EIS process goes forward, all the info the agencies need is in the document. He envisions much coordination with the agencies.

I told him any conversations with Corps staff beyond this initial contact would require Corps attorneys to be present. He wanted to chat some more but I asked him to send me a draft agenda of his discussion topics along with a proposed time and date for the call. I will coordinate internally (i.e. with you-all) and get back to him.

Jane
