

SACRAMENTO RIVER DEEP WATER SHIP CHANNEL CONSTRUCTION, GENERAL

PROJECT LOCATION AND DESCRIPTION: The Sacramento River Deep Water Ship Channel Project extends approximately 43 miles, from the Port of Sacramento to New York Slough, where it joins the 35-foot-deep San Francisco Bay to Stockton, California navigation project (John F. Baldwin and Stockton Ship Channels), thereby affording access from the Port of Sacramento to Bay Area harbors and the Pacific Ocean. The authorized project, to deepen the existing channel from a depth of 30- to 35-feet, was initiated in 1989 but work was suspended in 1990 at the request of the sponsor, the Port of Sacramento, due to their inability to continue financing their share of project costs.

FY 04 ACCOMPLISHMENTS: A Limited Reevaluation Report (LRR) is being prepared to review the existing designs, revise the project economics, reassess the dredge disposal sites, and update the environmental documentation. This draft re-evaluation is scheduled to be completed by September 2004.

FY 05 ACCOMPLISHMENTS: Anticipate execution of a revised Local Cooperation Agreement between the Corps and the Port of Sacramento and initiation of construction.

ISSUES AND OTHER INFORMATION: In 1998 Congress directed the Corps to perform a project re-evaluation project to serve as the basis for a possible recommendation to resume construction. In February 2002, the Port of Sacramento requested management of the project be transferred from Sacramento District to San Francisco District to better utilize their navigation expertise. This request was granted by South Pacific Division in April 2002.
